THE BEAUTY of HYPERSONIC FLIGHT

Imagine traveling from London to New York in under two hours or Seattle to Tokyo in under three hours. The race to build the first commercial hypersonic passenger aircraft is happening right now, but the most interesting development is, this is all being designed in a sustainable way. Introducing the concept of cleaner, more sustainable travel opens up a whole new world of possibilities for the airline industry. The design and manufacturing of hypersonic aircraft not only requires sustainability in materials used, but also in terms of energy efficiency and carbon footprint.

Boom, a Denver-based company in the US, has come up with a groundbreaking technology that is anticipated to have a massive impact on the aviation industry. The Symphony, which is the propulsion system powering the Overture supersonic aircraft, is expected to generate over 32 billion dollars in revenue. The eco-friendly nature of the Overture supersonic aircraft, which emits zero carbon emissions, bodes well for the current state of the environment. As the aviation industry moves towards becoming more sustainable, Boom seems to have found a perfect intersection between speed and environmental responsibility.

A PLACE OF PEACE ENJOYING THE SLOW LIFE

is one of the best barefoot luxury
sustainable eco friendly resorts in the world.

After a 14 hour flight, sitting on a private boat approaching the jetty on the crystal clear turquoise waters, I could see in the distance a welcoming party. As I came closer, I noticed a bag with the words 'no news no shoes' written across it quite effortlessly. The atmosphere was bright, the air felt light and I was at peace. I was welcomed with a refreshing fresh fruit cocktail and a gentle "welcome to Soneva Fushi the island of paradise".

Soneva Fushi is a private oasis hidden in the Maldives and steeped in exotic mystery. An unparalleled paradise of barefoot luxury, in a sustainable ecosystem of lush jungle, pristine beaches and crystalline waters. My first experience in this beautiful five star plus location was sublime. I was met by my own personal helper Jacob, a well spoken Dutch man, who was polite and ready to deal with my every request.

Soneva Fushi is where you go to create breathtaking moments and beautiful memories.

Nestled in the Baa Atoll UNESCO Biosphere Reserve and covering one of the largest islands in the Maldives, Soneva Fushi is a natural treasure that promises the ultimate tropical getaway. This stunning resort offers guests the experience to live amidst a lush jungle and in one of the 64 exquisite private island villas with excellent sunrise and sunset views.

The elegant villas boast vast living spaces, ample privacy, and a whole range of top-notch facilities and amenities for guests to enjoy.

I was given my own personal bicycle to explore the island and there was simply so much to discover. Whether its private dining with world class Michelin starred chefs, live music on the sand dunes in the middle of the Indian Ocean, glass making or staring at the stars with the likes of Buzz Aldrin.

Soneva Fushi is where you go to create breathtaking moments and beautiful memories.

CHRISTIAN LOUBOUTIN Vermelho

If you're looking for a place that combines luxury and style, look no further than Vermelho.

Christian Loubotin's connection with Portugal has long been known, especially within the Comporta region, where he has vacationed since the 1980's. The renowned shoe designer became famous for his stunning footwear creations known for their signature red sole.

Vermelho is Christian Louboutin's first hotel, located in Melides, Portugal. The hotel's decor was designed by Madalena Caiado, whose mission was to combine the local rural environment with Louboutin's eclectic taste. A testament to luxurious decor and bespoke details, Vermelho Hotel offers guests a unique experience like no other.

FOR THE CULTURALLY INQUISITIVE

As you step through Vermelho's historical wooden doors you will be welcomed by an intimate yet bold atmosphere. Described as a home for the culturally inquisitive and inexhaustibly curious. Hand selected art pieces by Louboutin himself and antique furniture all bursting with stories simply waiting to be told.

Located on the second floor is the Vista Verde room which, as the name implies, has gorgeous views of the verdant garden. Facing south, natural light beams throughout the room. The Jardim suites are equipped with exclusive artwork and a private terrace adjacent to the gardens. At the Vermelho Hotel there is so much to discover, as you are enveloped in the beauty and warmth of the natural surroundings.

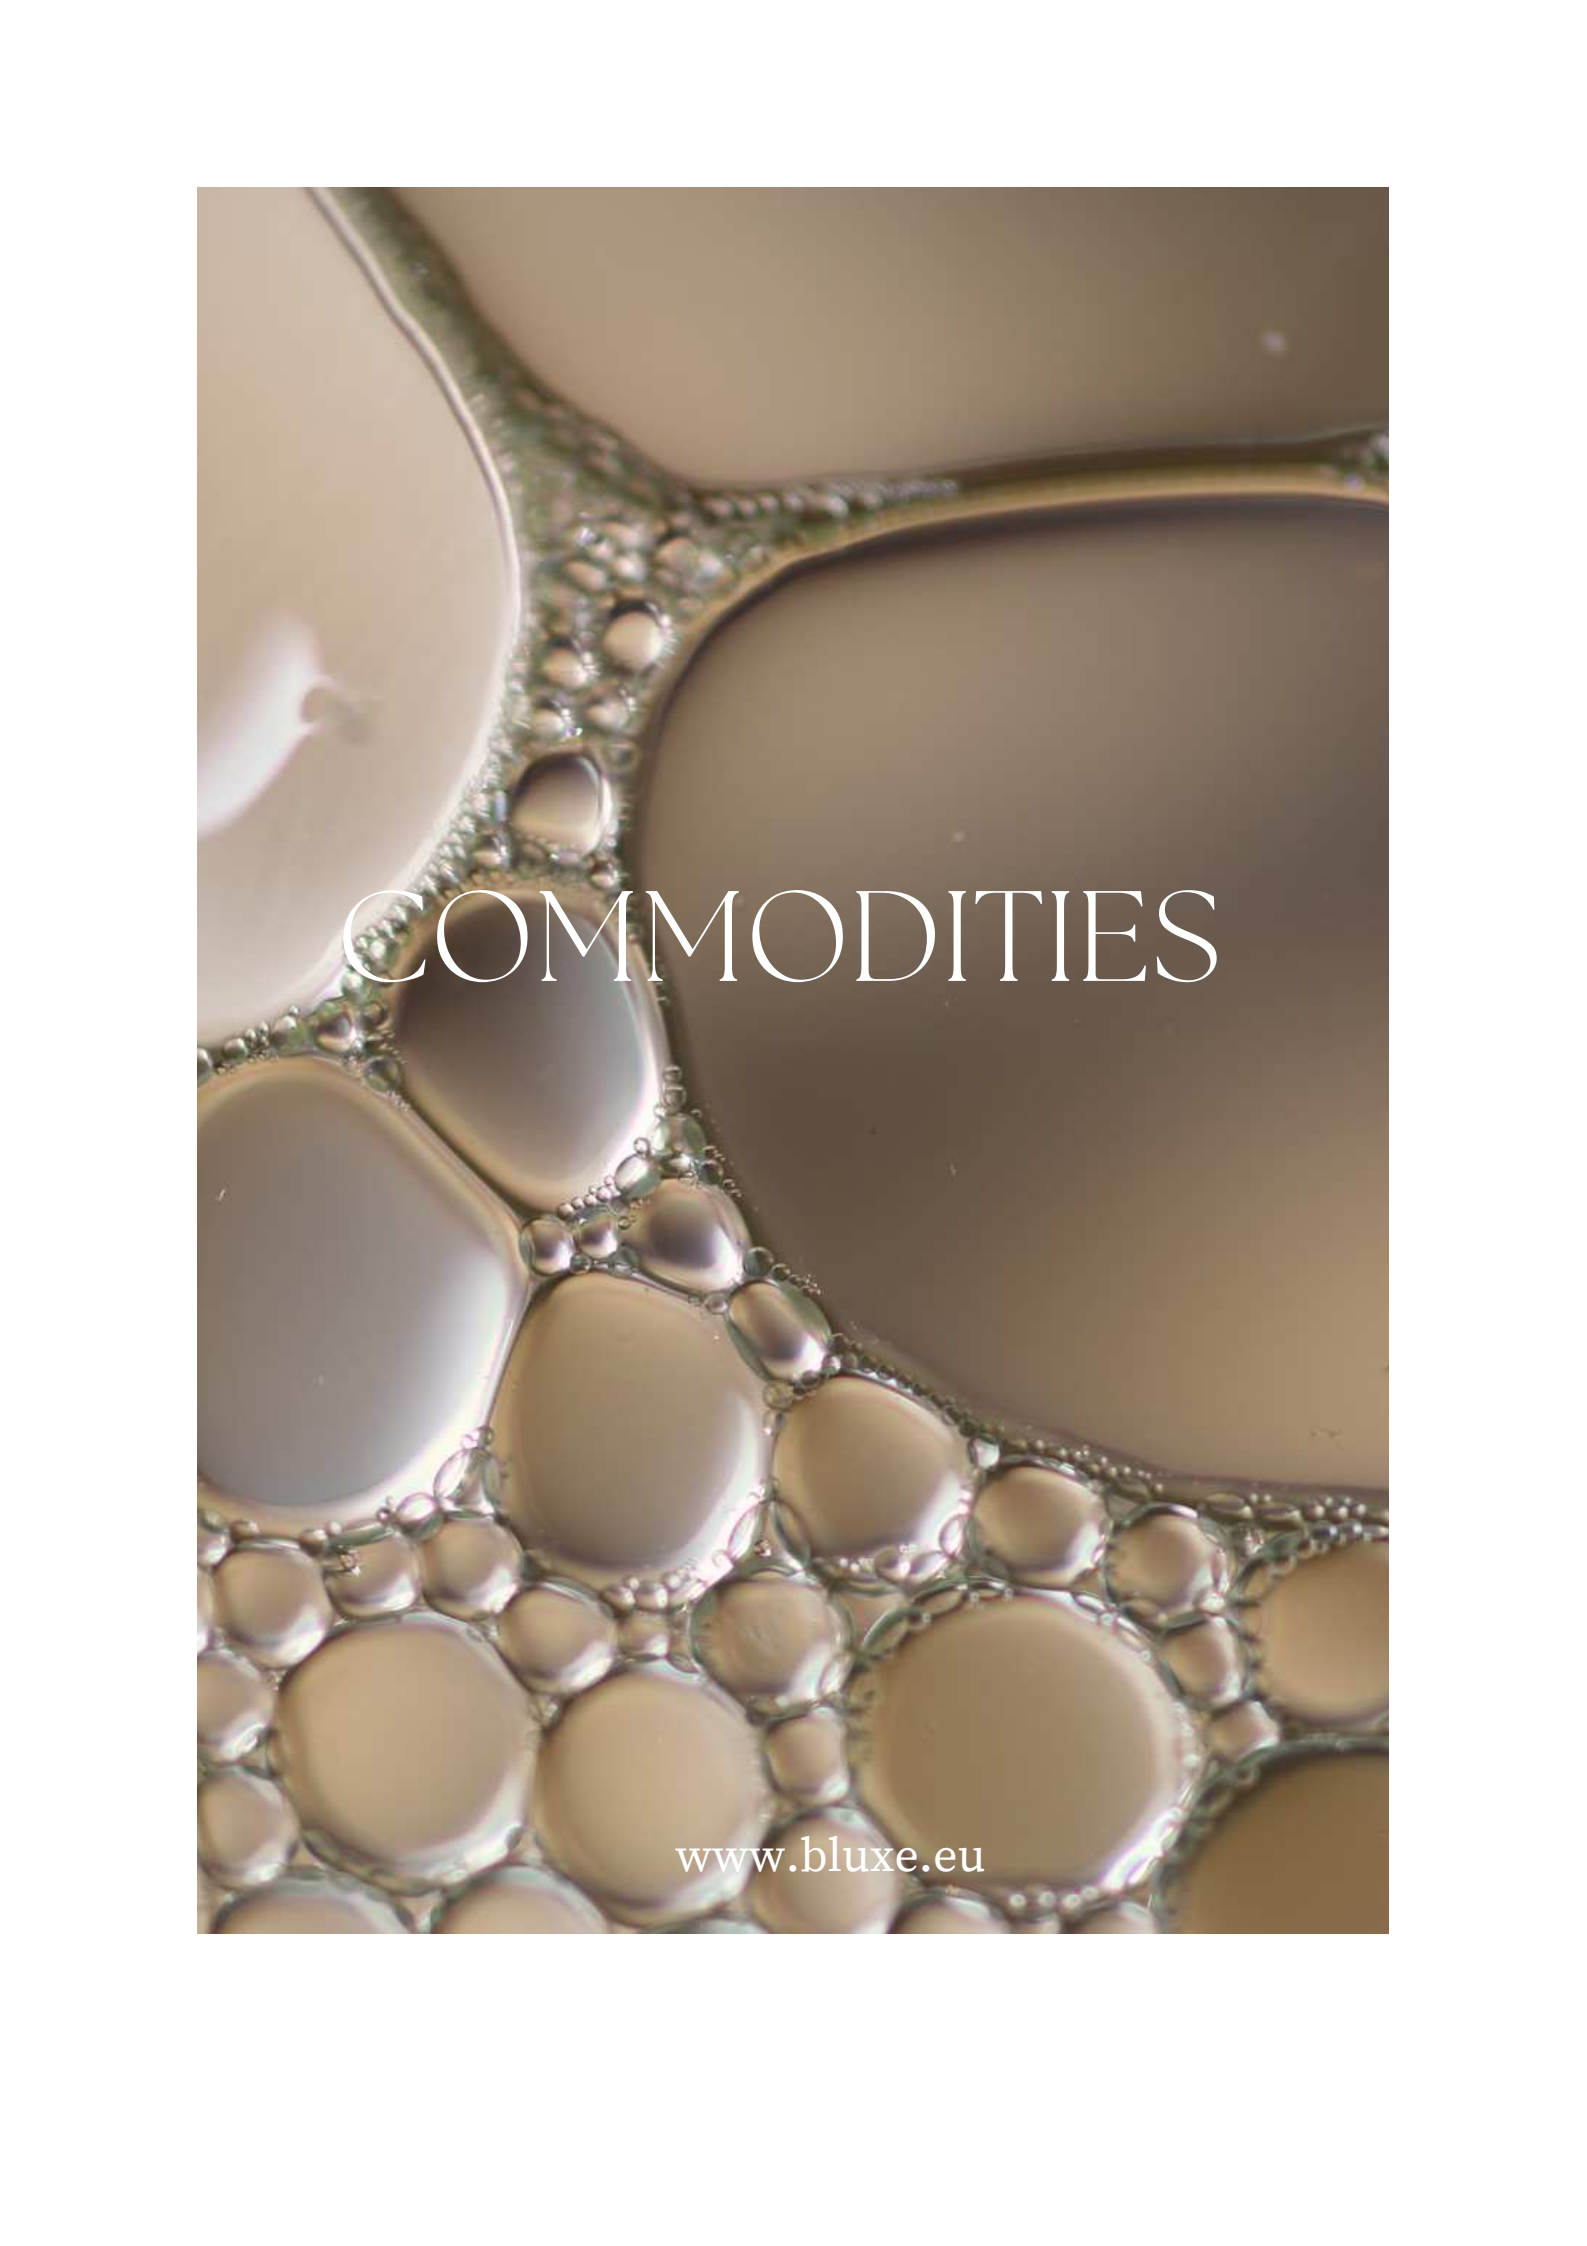

With whispers of further hotels to come in 2024, along with the signature touch of Louboutin, this hotel is simply a must visit.

THE ALENTEJO COAST

Nestled on the Alentejo Coast, the village of Melides is renowned for its tranquility, gentle pace of life and untainted land. With inspiration at every turn, from vineyards to rice fields, views of the Atlantic Ocean and ever-growing forests. In the village of Melides, there is no need to rush, take the time to explore the cobbled streets, and bask in the Melides sunrays.

BEST of AFRICA

Africa has had a long standing stigma associated with the very opposite of what can be experienced on the continent. If you think about luxury, wealth opulence, peace and tranquility, the first place one envisages would typically not be Africa. However, this couldn't be further from the truth or more inaccurate.

One can experience all four seasons within Africa including snow capped mountains and this article will shed light on some of the most luxurious and sumptuous destinations that one should consider visiting.
