

AFRICAN ISLAND

Just living
my best life.

Azura Benguerra, Mozambique

This beach lodge, situated on Benguerra Island in Mozambique's Bazaruto Archipelago, is one of the finest of its kind in the country! To access the property, travellers take a helicopter flight, complete with amazing views.

The property is home to just 14 rooms, with suites and villas having their own private access to the beautiful beach here.

RETREAT

Azura Quilalea, Mozambique

One of our favourite beach resorts in this gorgeous country is Azura Quilalea in the Quirimbas Archipelago.

Not only does this lodge boast a lovely location on a beautiful private island with stunning scenery and an abundance of activities, it is also one of the most eco-friendly luxurious beach lodges in Africa.

A LOOK AT EMERGING TRENDS

Ras Kutani, Tanzania

Zanzibar may offer some brilliant beach properties, but Tanzania's coast also has some beach lodges that are well worth visiting – one of these is the fabulous Ras Kutani. Situated just 40 kilometres from Dar es Salaam, it feels like a world away from the city.

Not only do we love this lodge for its charming chalets and gorgeous beach, but we also appreciate the value for money it offers, due to its position on the mainland, compared with other Zanzibar resorts.

SOCIAL Equity

Most people curious about how empires have attained success have at some point come across the likes of leaders such as Cleopatra who shattered the glass ceiling of power in ancient Egypt or Boudica, the fearsome first-century Celtic Iceni queen, who led a very confrontational uprising against the occupying Roman army.

The population of females in the world is estimated at 3.905 billion, representing 49.58% of the world's population. Globally, women control about $20 trillion in annual consumer spending, and that figure could climb as high as $28 trillion in the next five years. Their $1 trillion in total yearly earnings could reach as high as $18 trillion in the same period. Women represent a growth market bigger than China and India combined.

#EmbraceEquity was the theme for International Women's Day 2023 and it could not be more fitting. Being equitable is crucial for creating a fair and just society, it improves outcomes for everyone and is important in achieving economic sustainability, social cohesion and trust.

Supporting women and working together toward sustainable, equitable and inclusive growth should be a global priority. The economic support of women and the social and industrial balance that it creates is central to a successful and brighter future.

It includes women's ability to participate equally in existing markets; their access to productive resources, access to decent work, control over their own time, lives and bodies; an increased voice and meaningful participation in economic decision-making at all levels from the household to international institutions.

The GCC governments have been putting a lot of effort into improving the climate for female entrepreneurs. Encouraging women's entrepreneurship and the benefits it will bring to the economy.

Many emerging markets have historically acknowledged and experienced first-hand the benefits of matriarchal cultures and empires balanced with both men and women working together at all levels, for the common good of their economies. Oftentimes, one has to look back at what has worked successfully in order to make progressive steps forward.

VILA Collection VITA

The VILA VITA Collection comprises luxury villas and beachfront residences in the Algarve, Portugal. Beautifully imagined and lovingly decorated, the exclusive properties in the Vila Vita Collection portfolio enjoy enviable settings in beachside villages where traditional Algarvean lifestyles persist and raw, unspoilt nature survives. Located at the heart of Armação de Pêra, the Red Chalet was built during the turn of the 20th century and inspired by the opulent luxury of the Belle Époque era emerging in the South of France.

Now listed as a historical building and a famous landmark on the Armação de Pêra coastline, its renovation was committed to retain as many of the original elements as possible: a unique wooden floor, antique chandeliers, and a spectacular staircase were all lovingly recreated. The Moorish influences of the architecture, with geometric designs on the shutters and ceilings, all elegant reminders of the region's rich cultural history. Bridging the gap between the comforts of the present and the romance of the past, the large open kitchen opens into a living and dining area with a large terracotta terrace and spectacular seafront setting.

On the ceilings, sculpted grape vines are a reminder of those that once thrived in front of the villa itself. A small guest house in front of the property reimagines some of the distinctive character of the main house in a more contemporary aesthetic. It offers a duplex suite with living room and terrace downstairs, and an ensuite bedroom upstairs, as well as a further self-contained studio with bedroom, shower room and balcony. White-washed wooden floors and details in splashes of colour are recreated throughout the annex with a fresh, airy feel and a relaxed, effortless style, perfect for younger members of a family looking for their own space.

WHEN
pígs
FLY

SUSTAINABLE farming

Whether it was the blockbuster movie Charlotte's Web, or Babe we have all at some point found ourselves oohing and aahing at the sight of little piglets running around the farm, embarking on mini adventures and generally having a good time. However, what most of us didn't realise was just how much a happy and healthy breeder pig was truly worth. One might even say that pigs are certainly worth their weight in gold.

Its 2023, and its official - pigs are flying and creating small fortunes for those with an astute palette for investment.

As the world's population continues to grow to an estimated 10 billion people by 2050, the natural resources produced by the planet are unable to sustain this growth based on the current levels of production. The global farming and food production industry is about to commence a sustained period of unprecedented growth across all sectors.

Deep in the heart of the Philippines, Gerard McGuirk in partnership with Naruang Integrated Farm and BSPS, are leading the way and changing the landscape for farming globally.

FARMING FUTURES

THAT'S MY BABE

With Naruang Integrated Farm (also known as NIF - AGRI) which has been owned by the same family for over 100 years, and Lanna Integrated Farm already making waves in the industry, they are at the forefront of meeting the huge demand for sustainable produce and livestock, and offer interested parties the opportunity to become a part of the unprecedented growth and take advantage of this opportunity.

The BSPS pig farming investment has well and truly taken off, as expansion into Portugal took place in 2020, and further expansion of their second farm Lanna Integrated Farm, officially opened in July 2022, which is a purpose-built farm located in the high hills.

Investors are seeing returns of between 60%-70% over the course of 3 years.

So how did pig farming become one of the most lucrative investments of the decade? In 2018, a pandemic hit China, and in a short period over 350 million pigs had to be destroyed (this pandemic remains ongoing) causing a global shortage of cheap frozen pork. Due to this pandemic, China and a growing number of countries had pork exports and imports banned.

In March 2019, the Philippines banned the import of frozen pork from China, which supplied 80% of the pork to the population of 114 million people in the Philippines. This caused a huge increase in domestic pork prices.

McGuirk spotted the opportunity to breed high-quality large white breeders and not to breed pigs for slaughter, as the Philippine government had not been prepared for the effects of the pandemic and now wanted domestic farmers to try and fill the void.

Simply put, by having a better-quality domestic herd, farmers could increase production, employ more people and be able to provide sustainable affordable pigs to the market. So, when introduced to this concept by McGuirk, BSPS created a facility to raise capital for their breeding facilities and it took off. It is not dissimilar to other forms of breeding pedigree animals and selling the offspring to make a return, such as dogs, cats, and horses etc.

As BSPS provide high-quality breeding stock that other farmers can use to improve their herd's bloodline and in turn produce healthier better-quality pigs, investors are seeing returns of between 60%-70% over the course of 3 years.

REINVENTING THE PIGGY BANK

BSPS work with PIC Camborough 48 pigs which are the highest quality breeding stock on the market, and when the females are impregnated using PIC liquid semen, BSPS produce large litters, heavier piglets and a much more valuable animal.

"Returns on these are always good" states Gerard McGuirk, "as they are backed by all the experience of PIC, a large international genetic breeding company." This provides the farms with predictable numbers of piglets per litter, expected weights and the highest market value prices for the sale of these sought-after pigs and demand always outstrips this supply.

THE FUTURE OF FARMING

It is clear to see just how much the team at BSPS care about the future, farming ethically and creating innovative investment initiatives as a way of shaping the entire farming ecosystem for a brighter tomorrow and a lucrative today.

So, what has been the key to the success of BSPS? High bio-security, highly trained staff including their team of veterinarians on site, strictly controlled production and an unrivalled investment structure. Currently, BSPS can increase production on each farm at a rate of 25 PIC new gilts per month. This means they can allow a maximum of just 50 gilts per month to be added to the farm's production.

Its clear to see that pigs are really flying and it's a flight many are refusing to miss.
